Indianapolls Journal.

As an evidence of the temper of the Southern democracy, and to prove that the party is still solid in that section, the Memphis Appeal publishes extracts from a number of its Southern exchanges, which, it says, "hom Maryland to Texas, come to us teeming with spirit ed editorials urging the harmony and union of the democratic party," Some of these expressions are interesting as showing the drift of political feeling and discussion in the South. The Grenada, (Miss.) Sentenci says.

"The future of the democratic party is bright with promise. Out of the thirty eight states composing the tepublic, twenty three have democratic governors, and the doctrines of the party are gradually acquiring an ascendoncy over the popular mind. We have, too, the next house of representatives, Ballard, of Kentucky, appointed to the and the decline of radicalism in the United States Judgeship vacated by senate is so decided that we may safely count upon a democratic senate by the close of the present congress. The next president will be a democrat."

The Jackson, Tonn. San says: "The republican party can never command Southern white votes. Its record of the Pacific Coast. That paper comments on them at length, and says "We could fill every page of the Ap wanted he wouldn't pay for what he peal for weeks with the same unvaryhad cates. Referring to Postmaster General Kay, the Appeal denounces him as a political apostate, and declares that "the noble Democracy of the Volunteer State, in whose besom sleep three presidents Jackson, Polk and Johnson—ennnet be Secretary Evarts' Verment farm is induced to follow the lead of a bank-

Their idea of conciliation seems to embrace two main features, viz the complete surrender of the Republican party and the complete recognition and placing in power of the Democracy. Looking over the whole field, and judging the temper of the Southern people by the utterances of their leaders and of the press, we regret to say that we see no evidence whatever, not even the slightest, of an abandonmer; of the MACON, ILL., June 11, 1877. EDS. DECATUR REPUBLICAN:-The Macon Township Sunday School Association held its annual convention at the Presbytorian Church in this place yesterday, the 10th.
